BACKGROUND AND DISCUSSION

All sworn, armed probation officers are required to qualify quarterly at a firing range. Additionally, armed officers require relevant, realistic, and regular training with their firearm as it is a perishable skill. Each qualification/training is a minimum of four (4) hours. The Consultant/Range Master provides firearm qualification to armed staff, provide instruction including remedial instruction if required, develop lesson plans and training sessions. Furthermore, the Consultant/Range Master reviews department policies, procedures, laws, codes and other applicable regulations related to the use of force and ensure staff are knowledgeable in these laws. The Consultant/Range Master assists with setting up and taking down the range, ensures safety on the range, remains current with best practices in armory operations, and provides the department with an evaluation of the use of force training and tactics including recommendations for additional training or policy revision.

This Amendment No. 2 extends the term of the Agreement and increases the hourly rate of the Consultant from $110/hour to $115/hour.
